

FREE GUIDE
MINDSET

A GUIDE TO THE MIND BEHIND THE MOVEMENT

REWIRE

DO THE HARD THINGS

*Heal the relationship with yourself first .
Everything else follows.*

CONTENTS

-
- 01 THE MIND-BODY CONNECTION
-
- 02 REWIRING YOUR SELF-TALK
-
- 03 MINDFULNESS & BEING PRESENT
-
- 04 MANAGING STRESS & BIG EMOTIONS
-
- 05 BUILDING CONFIDENCE & SELF-WORTH
-
- 06 HABITS, IDENTITY & CONSISTENCY
-
- 07 YOUR PRACTICE LIBRARY
-
- 08 YOUR JOURNAL & ALL PROMPTS
-

WELCOME

When your mental space is clear, food becomes nourishment instead of comfort or punishment. Movement becomes self-respect instead of obligation. Rest stops feeling guilty. That's why this guide is the bow that ties the Wellness Series together, the foundation the other two were always standing on. Write in it. Come back to it. The last few pages are journal prompts so you can take everything you've read and reflected on, and apply it to yourself.

— with you in it, Alaias

CHAPTER ONE

THE MIND-BODY
CONNECTION

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

i READ

Your mind and your body were never two separate projects. They're one system, talking to each other every second of the day. The tight shoulders before a hard conversation, the pit in your stomach when you're anxious, the heaviness of a low week, that's your mind speaking through your body, in the only language it has.

For years the wellness world treated this backwards. It told you to fix the body and the mind would follow: shrink yourself, push harder, and one day you'd finally feel okay. But it doesn't work in that direction. Lasting change starts in the place where the story is written. It starts in how you think, how you speak to yourself, and what you believe you deserve.

This chapter isn't about thinking your way into a different body. It's about tending to the relationship underneath everything else: the one you have with your own mind. Healing the mind isn't the thing you do after. It's the thing that makes everything else possible.

CHAPTER ONE

THE MIND-BODY
CONNECTION

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

i READ

Here's what's useful to understand: when an experience lands hard, your brain doesn't just file it away, it keeps it. It takes a snapshot of the moment and replays it, sometimes for years, until an old story quietly runs today's decisions. That's why "I'm just an anxious person" can feel like a fact when it's really a well-worn loop. The good news: loops can be rewired.

THE THOUGHT

A thought is not a fact and not a command. It's a passing event in the mind. You don't have to believe every one. Noticing a thought, instead of becoming it, is where your freedom begins.

THE FEELING

Feelings are your body's response to a thought. They're information, not instructions. A feeling can be fully felt and still not get to drive the car.

THE PATTERN

Repeated enough times, thought and feeling carve a groove, a default. Change isn't forcing a new groove overnight; it's noticing the old one often enough that you get to choose again.

CHAPTER ONE

THE MIND-BODY CONNECTION

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

BESTIE TIP

You are not your thoughts, you're the one noticing them. That small gap, between having a thought and believing it, is where every bit of this work happens. You have more room in there than you think.

ii REFLECT

No wrong answers here. Just be honest with yourself.

A way my body tells me my mind is overwhelmed is...

A story about myself I've been replaying that I'd like to question is...

CHAPTER ONE

THE MIND-BODY CONNECTION

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

iii PLAN

An honest starting line, no judgment. This is just a snapshot of today, not a verdict.

ONE THOUGHT I'LL PRACTICE NOTICING THIS WEEK

WHEN MY MIND FEELS LOUD, ONE KIND THING I'LL DO FOR MY BODY

HOW I'LL KNOW IT'S WORKING (A FEELING, NOT A FIX)

CHAPTER TWO

REWIRING YOUR SELF-TALK

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

i READ

Forget “just think positive.” That’s a sticker over a problem. Real change in your self-talk comes from understanding the voice first, where it learned to speak, and who it’s actually trying to protect.

Here’s the thing: your inner critic isn’t evil. It’s old. Somewhere along the way it decided that if it got hard on you first, it could keep you safe from failing, from being judged, from hoping too much. It’s been practicing that job for years. No wonder it’s loud. But a voice that practiced this long can also be retrained.

You don’t silence the critic. You give it a new job. The goal isn’t a mind full of fake compliments, it’s a mind that talks to you the way you’d talk to someone you love. Honest, warm, on your side. That voice is a skill you practice, not a personality you were born with.

CHAPTER TWO

REWIRING YOUR SELF-TALK

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

i READ

When the critic gets loud, you don't argue with it. You walk it through three steps.

01 · NOTICE

Catch the thought in the act and name it: "I'm having the thought that..." That tiny phrase creates distance — you go from being the thought to observing it.

02 · QUESTION

Ask gently: Is this true? Is it the whole truth? Would I say it to my best friend? Most critic thoughts fall apart the moment you ask them to prove it.

03 · REFRAME

Trade the harsh line for an honest, kinder one. Not a lie — a fairer truth. "I always quit" becomes "I've started again before, and I can start again now."

CHAPTER TWO

REWIRING YOUR SELF-TALK

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

i

READ

Here’s what the rewire sounds like in real life. The reframe isn’t sugar — it’s a truer sentence.

THE CRITIC SAYS	THE KINDER, TRUER VERSION
“I’M SO LAZY.”	“I’m tired, and I’m allowed to rest. One small step still counts.”
“I ALWAYS MESS THIS UP.”	“This is hard, and I’m learning. One slip isn’t the whole story.”
“EVERYONE’S AHEAD OF ME.”	“I’m on my own timeline. Comparison isn’t data, it’s noise.”
“I SHOULD BE FURTHER BY NOW.”	“I’m exactly where my effort has taken me, and I can keep going from here.”
“WHY BOTHER STARTING?”	“Starting small is still starting. Done beats perfect.”

CHAPTER TWO

REWIRING YOUR SELF-TALK

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

ii REFLECT

No wrong answers here. Just be honest with yourself.

The harshest thing my inner critic says on repeat is...

If that voice was trying to protect me, what might it be afraid of?

BESTIE TIP

Talk to yourself like someone you're responsible for loving. You'd never call a friend the names you call yourself on a bad day, so let's stop accepting it as the background music of your life.

CHAPTER TWO

REWIRING YOUR SELF-TALK

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

iii PLAN

Pick one self-critic thought and walk it through the rewire. Keep it generous and kind.

THE THOUGHT I’LL CATCH THIS WEEK (NOTICE)
ONE HONEST QUESTION I’LL ASK IT (QUESTION)
THE KINDER, TRUER VERSION I’LL PRACTICE (REFRAME)

CHAPTER THREE

MINDFULNESS & BEING PRESENT

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

i READ

Mindfulness has a branding problem. It sounds like incense and an empty mind and an hour you don't have. Let's strip all that away. Mindfulness is just this: paying attention to right now, on purpose, without beating yourself up about it. That's the whole practice.

Most of our stress doesn't live in the present moment, it lives in a replayed past or a rehearsed future. Your mind time-travels constantly, dragging your nervous system with it. Mindfulness is simply the practice of coming back. Not staying forever. Just coming back, again and again, as many times as it takes.

You don't need to clear your mind, that's a myth that makes people quit. A busy mind isn't failing at mindfulness; noticing it's busy is the mindfulness. Every time you notice you've wandered and gently return, that's a rep. That's the whole workout.

CHAPTER THREE

MINDFULNESS & BEING PRESENT

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

ii REFLECT

For racing-mind moments. No app, no cushion, just your senses, pulling you back into the room.

#	NOTICE
5	THINGS YOU CAN SEE
4	THINGS YOU CAN FEEL OR TOUCH
3	THINGS YOU CAN HEAR
2	THINGS YOU CAN SMELL
1	THING YOU CAN TASTE

BESTIE TIP

This works because your senses only ever happen in the present. You can't see yesterday or hear tomorrow. When the mind spirals, the body is the door back and it's always unlocked.

CHAPTER THREE

MINDFULNESS & BEING PRESENT

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

iii PLAN

The place my mind time-travels to most (past or future) is...

My one mindful moment this week (e.g. first sip of coffee, walk, before bed, cleaning)

CHAPTER FOUR

MANAGING STRESS
& BIG EMOTIONS

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

/ READ

Ok ladies, one thing I think we can all agree on, the term "big emotions" can be triggering. Many of us are all too familiar with "why are you being so emotional" or "why are women so emotional," so we have been wired to suppress our emotions. And I get it. When you've been made to feel like your emotions are a problem, spending years trying to suppress them makes complete sense.

So I need you to hear this: your ability to feel, to empathize, to care deeply, that is one of the most beautiful things about you. Big emotions aren't a malfunction. They're information, messengers knocking to tell you something matters. The goal was never to feel calm all the time. It's to stop being afraid of your own feelings, so they can move through you instead of running the show.

Most of us were taught two options: explode or numb. But there's a third way nobody teaches, feel it, on purpose, with support. Emotions are like waves. They rise, they crest, and if you let them, they pass. Numbing doesn't end the wave; it just makes you brace against it forever.

CHAPTER FOUR

MANAGING STRESS
& BIG EMOTIONS

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

ii REFLECT

When emotion spikes, logic goes offline. These tools talk to your body first, because that's where calm actually starts.

LONGER EXHALE

Inhale for 4, exhale for 6. A longer exhale is a direct signal to your nervous system that you're safe. Do it five times.

COOL & GROUND

Cold water on the wrists, feet flat on the floor, a hand on your heart. Bring your attention down out of the spinning head and into the body.

NAME IT TO TAME IT

Quietly name the feeling: "This is anxiety." Naming an emotion calms the alarm part of the brain almost instantly.

MOVE IT THROUGH

A brisk walk, a stretch, a shake-out. Emotion is energy, gentle movement gives it somewhere to go instead of getting stuck.

BESTIE TIP

You don't have to earn the right to feel things. Feelings aren't too much, and you aren't too sensitive. You're a person with a working heart and that has always been a strength, not a flaw.

CHAPTER FOUR

MANAGING STRESS & BIG EMOTIONS

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

iii PLAN

The way I usually deal with a big feeling (explode, numb, or feel it) is...

MY EARLY WARNING SIGN THAT I'M OVERWHELMED

THE FIRST CALM-TOOL KIT I'LL REACH FOR IN THE MOMENT

CHAPTER FIVE

BUILDING CONFIDENCE & SELF-WORTH

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

i READ

Ok, so let's talk about something I think gets mixed up a lot, confidence and self-worth aren't the same thing, and both matter.

Confidence isn't a feeling you wait to arrive. It's a trust you build brick by brick by keeping small promises to yourself. Every time you say you'll do something and you do it, you're teaching your brain: I can count on me. That's confidence. Not a personality you're born with, a track record you build.

Self-worth is different. Confidence is about what you can do; worth is about who you already are before a single achievement, on your hardest day, with nothing to show for it. And I need you to hear this: your worth was never up for negotiation.

You don't earn it by shrinking, by achieving, or by finally getting it right. It came standard. It was always there.

CHAPTER FIVE

BUILDING CONFIDENCE
& SELF-WORTH

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

ii

REFLECT

*Your brain is great at collecting proof you're failing and terrible at keeping proof you're strong.
So we build the file on purpose.*

WHAT IT IS	A running list of moments you showed up, kept going, were brave, or were kind, especially the small, un-Instagrammable ones. The hard text you sent. The walk you took anyway. The boundary you held.
WHY IT WORKS	On a low day, the critic says "you never follow through." The evidence list lets you answer with receipts. You're not arguing with a feeling, you're reading back the truth.
HOW TO USE IT	Add one entry whenever you catch yourself being capable. Read it on the days you forget. This is the list you reach for when you need to remember who you actually are.

BESTIE TIP

*You will never shame yourself into becoming someone you're proud of.
That version of you is built with kindness, kept promises, and patience, never with contempt. Be the friend you've been waiting for.*

CHAPTER FIVE

BUILDING CONFIDENCE & SELF-WORTH

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

iii — PLAN

A small promise I kept to myself recently, proof I can count on me is...

One small promise to myself this week

CHAPTER SIX

HABITS, IDENTITY
& CONSISTENCY

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

/ READ

Ok, here's something that changed everything for me and I think it'll land for you too. You don't rise to your goals. You fall to your systems. And underneath every system is an identity, a quiet belief about the kind of person you are. That's the real engine of change. Not motivation, not willpower, not a perfect plan. It's who you believe you are.

Here's what that means in practice: you decide who you're becoming, and then you let small actions cast votes for that person. Every time you show up, even imperfectly, even just a little, you're casting a vote. And when you miss a day? The only rule that matters is never miss twice. One off day doesn't break the habit. It's what you do next that counts.

CHAPTER SIX

HABITS, IDENTITY & CONSISTENCY

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

ii REFLECT

How habits actually stick

THE LEVER	WHAT TO DO
START TINY	Shrink the habit until it's almost laughable. Two minutes, one page, one stretch. Consistency first, size later.
IDENTITY FIRST	Say "I'm the kind of person who..." Every small action is a vote for that person.
HABIT STACKING	Anchor the new habit to one you already do: "After I pour my coffee, I'll write one line."
MAKE IT OBVIOUS	Leave the cue in plain sight — shoes by the door, journal on the pillow. Design beats discipline.
NEVER MISS TWICE	One off day is human. The habit is protected by getting back the very next day, not by being perfect.

BESTIE TIP

Every action you take is a vote for the person you're becoming. You don't need a landslide, you just need to keep quietly casting votes in your own favor, on the ordinary days nobody's watching.

CHAPTER SIX

HABITS, IDENTITY & CONSISTENCY

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

iii — PLAN

The kind of person I'm quietly becoming is...

The identity I'm voting for ("I'm someone who...")

My tiny habit, stacked onto something I already do

CHAPTER SEVEN

YOUR PRACTICE LIBRARY

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

/ READ

This is one of my favourite chapters, because this is where it all becomes real. A morning mindset routine, an evening wind-down, these are the small rituals that bookend your day and keep you anchored when life gets loud. And I want to be really clear about something: these are templates, not commandments. There's no perfect version you have to hit.

A two-minute practice you actually do will always beat a perfect twenty-minute one you never touch. So take what works, leave what doesn't, and make it yours.

BESTIE TIP

You don't need the whole library every day. Pick one practice, do it badly, do it anyway. The habit is the point, not the polish.

CHAPTER SEVEN

YOUR PRACTICE LIBRARY

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

ii

REFLECT

MORNING MINDSET

ROUTINE ONE · ABOUT 5 MINUTES

01	BEFORE THE PHONE	Keep your eyes off the screen for the first few minutes. Let your mind wake up as yours.	1 MIN
02	THREE SLOW BREATHS	Inhale for 4, exhale for 6. Feel your feet on the floor. You're here.	1 MIN
03	ONE INTENTION	Name how you want to feel today, not just what you have to do.	1 MIN
04	ONE KIND LINE	Say one warm sentence to yourself, out loud or in your head.	1 MIN
05	NAME ONE GOOD THING	Say one warm sentence to yourself, out loud or in your head.	1 MIN

CHAPTER SEVEN

YOUR PRACTICE LIBRARY

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

ii REFLECT

EVENING WIND-DOWN

ROUTINE TWO · ABOUT 5 MINUTES

01	SCREENS DOWN	Dim the lights, put the phone to bed before you. Signal to your body that the day is closing.	1 MIN
02	BRAIN DUMP	Write down anything still spinning: tomorrow's list, a worry, a loose thread. Out of your head, onto the page.	2 MIN
03	ONE WIN	Name one thing that went right today, even a tiny one. Train your mind to look for proof.	1 MIN
04	LET IT GO	One slow breath for anything you're carrying that isn't yours to fix tonight.	1 MIN

CHAPTER SEVEN

YOUR PRACTICE LIBRARY

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

iii PLAN - PLAN YOUR OWN SESSION

*A gentle week of checking in. The only tool you ever truly needed, you already had:
a mind worth befriending, and the willingness to keep coming back to it.*

DAY	TODAYS PRACTICE	DONE	MOOD 1-5
MONDAY
TUESDAY
WEDNESDAY
THURSDAY
FRIDAY
SATURDAY
SUNDAY

ONE THOUGHT IM PROUD OF CATCHING THIS WEEK

A MOMENT MY MIND FELT A LITTLE LIGHTER

YOUR JOURNAL & ALL PROMPTS

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

iv JOURNAL - THE MIND-BODY CONNECTION

Write a letter to the version of you who learned to treat your mind as the enemy. What would you tell her now?

This guide is here to support a kinder relationship with yourself, not to diagnose, treat, or replace therapy or medical care. If your thoughts ever feel too heavy to carry alone, please reach out to a qualified mental-health professional or a trusted person in your life. 💕

CHAPTER EIGHT

YOUR JOURNAL & ALL PROMPTS

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

iv JOURNAL - REWIRING YOUR SELF TALK

Where did your inner critic first learn to speak? Whose voice does it sound like and what would you say back to it now?

A NOTE OF CARE

This guide is here to support a kinder relationship with yourself, not to diagnose, treat, or replace therapy or medical care. If your thoughts ever feel too heavy to carry alone, please reach out to a qualified mental-health professional or a trusted person in your life. 💕

YOUR JOURNAL & ALL PROMPTS

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

iv JOURNAL - MINDFULNESS AND BEING PRESENT

When was the last time you felt fully here, not rushing toward the next thing? What were you doing, and what made it possible?

This guide is here to support a kinder relationship with yourself, not to diagnose, treat, or replace therapy or medical care. If your thoughts ever feel too heavy to carry alone, please reach out to a qualified mental-health professional or a trusted person in your life. 💕

YOUR JOURNAL & ALL PROMPTS

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

iv JOURNAL - MANAGING STRESS AND BIG EMOTIONS

This guide is here to support a kinder relationship with yourself, not to diagnose, treat, or replace therapy or medical care. If your thoughts ever feel too heavy to carry alone, please reach out to a qualified mental-health professional or a trusted person in your life. 💕

YOUR JOURNAL & ALL PROMPTS

READ · REFLECT · PLAN · JOURNAL

iv JOURNAL - YOUR PRACTICE LIBRARY

This guide is here to support a kinder relationship with yourself, not to diagnose, treat, or replace therapy or medical care. If your thoughts ever feel too heavy to carry alone, please reach out to a qualified mental-health professional or a trusted person in your life. 💕

YOUR JOURNAL & ALL PROMPTS

iv JOURNAL - LOOKING BACK OVER THE GUIDE

This guide is here to support a kinder relationship with yourself, not to diagnose, treat, or replace therapy or medical care. If your thoughts ever feel too heavy to carry alone, please reach out to a qualified mental-health professional or a trusted person in your life. 💕

A NOTE OF CARE

This guide was never about perfection. It was never about creating a quiet mind or a finished, healed version of you. It's about building a relationship with your mind, one that is gentle, forgiving, and understanding. How you choose to act. The words you say to yourself. The story you decide to keep telling. That shift doesn't require a perfect morning routine or a life without stress, it just requires you, choosing yourself again. Some days that will be a full practice. Some days it's one kinder thought, one promise kept to yourself. Both count. Both are the work. You always had the only tool you needed. You're already using it.

DO THE HARD THINGS

THE HEALTH CO.